I am not going to argue with any more Catholics since it's a waste of my time and theirs, and will only lead to anger. We may believe different things but we are still one in Christ. I will spend my time bettering myself and gaining knowledge on faith to the best of my ability.

Rural America has suffered greatly due to corporations exporting labor to third world countries. Mom and pop shops virtually gone all because of cheap made goods, sold in massive warehouse sized shops dotted in every American city from sea to shining sea. We need to fix this.

Honestly when American cities look like old European cities, thats when they are at their best. No one likes this concrete, steel, and glass nonsense that is in modern cities. You know you fucked up as a civilization when your past is more inspiring and beautiful.

I know good women exist, I see some of them here on Twitter. But they are very rare, I havent ever actually met one, or if I did, they were in their 80s and 90s, of the last good generation. Most women today are self centered, hedonistic, witch, libtards. I have no hope.

Paganism simply didnt have enough evidence, it was just attractive to the soul, but nothing else. Christianity actually has evidence to back it beyond the Bible. Plus its prophecies. But that isnt what converted me back. It was a certain theory as to the origin of Europeans.

So a lot of my family, up until my grand father (at least I think) were apart of secret societies. My Great grandfather to my Great Great Great grandfather were apart of "Woodmen of the World" and my G-G-G-G grandfather was apart of the Mason fraternity. Was this common?

to make for myself before weighing in on any political things. I can't just go all out political, because I joined the Navy which I did to help build a good foundation for my life.

There is still a real world beyond all our "far right" inspirational videos and books and ideals, and it's one that doesn't want us. It isn't as easy as dropping everything and working on the 14 words. But people have livelihoods or lack there of, that they want to build.

Gonna be honest folks, what's so wrong about the Ku Klux Klan? I mean them in their purist form, like in "The Birth of a Nation". I mean the titles are odd, but other than that they don't seem that bad. Even visited their website, looks rather good too. Probably cucked though.

The Republic isn't the problem, letting too many people vote is. This country wasn't founded on letting all above 18 vote. It was founded on only letting White land owning men, over the age of 21 vote.

Are British police trained to run away if they are met with excessive resistance? That's how it looks, cause it takes real cowardice to run away from a criminal as a policeman (or maybe its the police "women") Or maybe they will just let on any average Joe, and give them a taser.

We are told that America is just a concept.

A collection of ideas that isn't defined by a single people.

What did millions of men die for? What did they think they were building?
Defending?

Would they feel pride in the nation of their descendants?

Would they recognize it?

Fatherhood is a rite of passage for every man.

It can be said that a man doesn't become a man until he takes on the responsibility of a family.

This responsibility shouldn't be feared, but looked at as a duty.

No society has a future without fathers guiding their children.

Masculinity is a virtue in men.

Modernity tries to turn it into a vice.

But remember, even the modern woman wants a masculine man.

Masculine virtues builds homes, offers protection, and maintains a nation.

Without masculinity in our people, we would not exist.

People are talking about weird conspiracy theories in my class and calling each other "woke" about things like Egyptians, fingers, humanoids before humans, etc. And yet the Bible is so insane and can't possibly be real.... I shake my head at these fools.

I do sincerely hope there are still some traditional independent towns in America, especially ones with unique cultures like New Ulm in Minnesota (photos), which was settled by a bunch of Germans, or another German area is in Texas where they speak a unique Texas German dialect.

I honestly don't think it needs to be said, but Gott mit uns, meine Brüder und Schwestern.

Why are the Germans hated? Is it because they are so good at military and industry? I feel most connected with my German side and will never understand the hatred from almost everyone. After all WW2 was against the German folk, and I think that says a lot. Are they scared of us?

All history in American, since 1914 is controlled, manipulated, and false. Before the wars we were strong, independant, free, and feared God. The west shaped our identity, our attitude. But now we have lost all that, given up our pioneering, fighting spirit for consumerism.

The mythology can still be in the stories and fairy tales, we dont have to erase them. No reason to give your life away for a religion that makes you feel good and says what you want not only to hear, but what you want it to say.

But there is no reason to go back to worldly religion, where there is very little intellectual or theological evidence. Jesus is the way the truth and the life. The Bible isnt just an old book written by some guys in the desert, something like that doesnt just catch on.

I see the appeal of Norse or Germanic Paganism in this day and age. We have been disconnected from God, from our heritage, and our values and you think paganism has the answers, especially to men who feel lost. When you see the masculine men with no fear, you feel inspired.

I have taken a DNA test and now know my Y-DNA and it wasn't what I was expecting. Of course it means very little, but unlocks more secrets to my families history, especially pre Anglo Saxon. I am of the haplogroup I1, which is most prominent in Sweden and is one of the oldest.

Going through old family photos from the last 150 years, so nice to see how it once was, especially in Oregon, where my family lived. I wish I could travel back, not just to see how nice it was back then, but also to talk to my ancestors, and hear stories that have been lost.

according to gender but according to their individual hereditary makeup. Toddlers begin to learn gender roles before they can even talk. Two-year-olds show real understanding of these roles. By age 11, the patterns are deeply ingrained. They are virtually cast in concrete in adults. Young teens, with their newly maturing sexual bodies, often exaggerate these roles to make sure that those around them are aware of their femininity or masculinity. Today, if you are male, you have probably grown up under pressure to "succeed"; to be strong, brave, and independent; and to hide emotions. You may have been encouraged to play rough games, to defeat others, and not to get too close emotionally. If you are female, you have probably grown up with demands to be beautiful or attractive and sensitive to others' feelings. Perhaps you have been urged to be artistic, to avoid aggression, and to take care of others. Complete acceptance of society's gender roles is not always easy or desirable. People are individuals. Roles that may fit one person perfectly may

Melting pot : the idea that people who came for benefits built the country

THE HOAX OF AMERICA
AS A MELTING POT

1908 play 'The Melting Pot', by Israel Zangwill.

Zangwill came from a family of Jewish immigrants from Czarist Russia. He was a dedicated advocate for Zionism and Territorialism - a Jewish political movement calling for the creation of an Israeli state in Palestine.

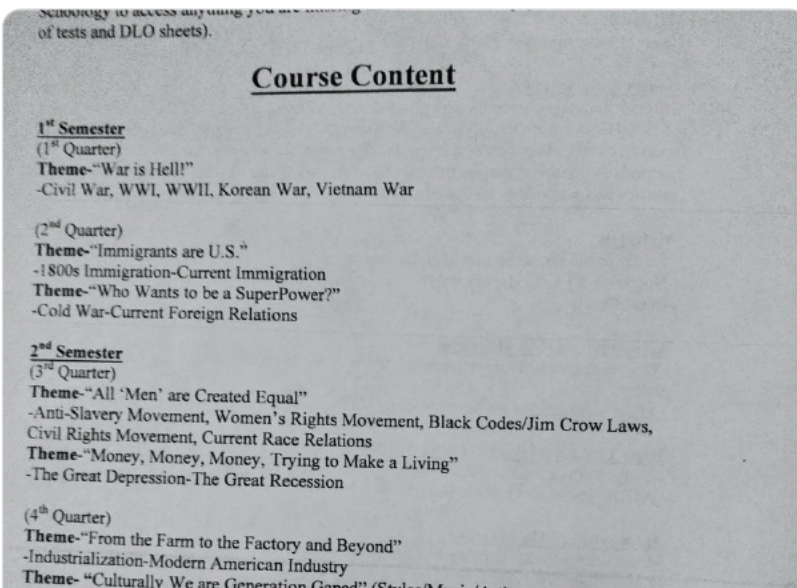

Today, we are all taught that America has forever been a mix of different cultures, despite the fact that it remained 90% ethnically and culturally European until the immigration act of 1965 which was passed under the promise that it would not change the cultural and racial makeup of the United States.

One of the greatest struggles for me is figuring out how to start my life without becoming a debt slave. Its especially hard when no one will hire you, even after looking for ever half a year. Bet if I was anything but white and male it would be a lot easier.

Perhaps the worst part of being apart of Gen Z is that I never had a chance to ever see a sane world, the closest I have gotten was when I was blissfully ignorant as a child, having fun with my friends and playing games... that changed quickly.
